

LITERARY NOTES.

An edition of the works of Alexander Hamilton is in the press of G. P. Putnam's Sons. Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, author of a biography of Hamilton, is the editor of the edition, which will be a limited one.

The Harpers have just brought out a library edition of the collection of short tales and anecdotes which Charles Webb wrote under the title of "Good Stories."

Musurus Pacha, the Turkish Ambassador in London, has translated Dante's "Purgatorio" into modern Greek.

The Rev. William Gaskell, the husband of the author of "Mary Barton," lately died in Manchester. He was a Unitarian clergyman.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

New Publications.

THE SURGEON'S STORIES FROM THE SWEDISH

OF PROF. TOPELIUS.

TIMES OF GUSTAV ADOLF.

TIMES OF BATTLE AND REST.

TIMES OF CHARLES XII.

TIMES OF FREDERICK I.

TIMES OF LINNETS.

TIMES OF ALCHEMY.

"It is safe to say that no one could possibly fail to be carried along by the torrent of fiery narration which marks these wonderful tales."—[Philadelphia Press.]

We wish that there were more such novels written, and fewer mere psychological analyses."—[Mail and Express, New York.]

A vivid, romantic picturing of one of the most fascinating periods of human history."—[New-York Tribune.]

"Most exquisitely written and translated."—[Transcript, Boston.]

Each book is complete and independent in itself, but an historical sequence and unity connects the series.

PRICE PER VOLUME, $1.25.

Sold by all booksellers or mailed postpaid on receipt of price by the publishers.

JANSEN, MCCLURG & CO., COR. WABASH AND MADISON ST., CHICAGO.

"IT IS DIFFICULT TO PHRASE THE ADMIRATION we feel," says the Boston Courier in speaking of J. S. Dale's new novel, "The Crime of Henry Vane," without incurring the charge of extravagance. . . . It is one of the most notable contributions to American literature." No novel of recent years has received more thoughtful and discriminating praise from the newspapers. The N. Y. Times says: "There is a sharpness of description, a keen analysis of thought, an easy way of describing human action, which renders this story quite remarkable." The volume, in a charming binding, is for sale at all bookstores. Price one dollar.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, Publishers.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR JULY

is a brilliant "Fourth of July" number. It contains an interesting paper, profusely illustrated, entitled "A Fourth of July Among the Indians"; also, "The Youngest Soldier of the Revolution," and "How the Tories Broke up Meeting," two capital Revolutionary sketches.

THE BARTHOLFI STATUE. By Charles Barnard, a popular, well-illustrated account of the colossal statue, with a description of how it was made, and of the plans for the construction of the pedestal.

Miss Alice E. Brooks, Celia Thaxter, Mrs. M. F. Butts, Jessie Chandler, and others contribute stories, poems, verses, etc.

Price, 25 cents; $3 a year. Sold everywhere.

THE CENTURY CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.

ARCHIBALD MALMAISON.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

12mo, paper, 15 cents; cloth, extra paper, 75 cents.

IN FUNK & WAGNALLS'S STANDARD LIBRARY. 10 and 32 Dey-st., New York.

PRACTICAL COOKERY.

BY MISS MARIA PARLOA.

A SERIES OF KITCHEN LESSONS WITH DEMONSTRATIONS. TRIBUNE EXTRA, NO. 82. . . . PRICE, 25 CENTS.

Address to Ogden, Montgomery, Pa.; Penn.; telegraph to York, Pa.; and to North Penn, N. H.

THE TRIBUNE, New York.

TWO USEFUL BOOKS.

TRIBUNE ALMANAC FOR 1884.

THE PRACTICAL ATLAS. THE STANDARD ATLAS AND STATISTICAL AUTHORITY EDITED BY THE HON. EDWARD MCPHERSON.

PRICE 30 CENTS; A COPY—5 CENTS FOR ONE DOLLAR.

TRIBUNE INDEX.

FOR 1883. An Index under Topics found in the World's History during 1883, as detailed in the columns of THE DAILY TRIBUNE.

THE DAILY TRIBUNE. PRICE 50 cents.

Index of the previous years 1875-'76-'77-'78-'79-'80-'81, and '$2 can be had. Price 50 cents.

THE TRIBUNE, New York.

Instruction.

For Boys and Young Men—City.

THE COLLEGiate SCHOOL, No. 721 Madison-ave., near 54th-st., Dr. H. B. CHAPIN, Principal. English, classical, and military departments. Gymnasium, library, and computer in the apportionments. The catalogue for 1884 is now out.

MISS R. KIERSTED'S BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR BOYS. For ladies and children, will open Wednesday, Oct. 1, 1884, at 61 East 57th-st., corner of Park-ave., N. Y. Circulars on application to 200 West 125th-st.

MISS PEEBLES and MISS THOMPSON will open an English, French and German Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies and Children, on October 1st, 1884, at 62 East 57th-st., New York.

TEACHERS' AGENCY.—36 West 21st-st., N. Y. Professors, teachers recommended to schools and families; careful advice in choice of best schools.

Box 10, Equitable Building, New York City.

Teachers.

FOR BOYS AND YOUNG MEN—CITY.

BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR Young Ladies and Misses, 647 Madison-ave., under the direction of the Misses G. L. and M. H. Morris. The school is open to applications for September 1st.

MISS GALLAHER'S French Protestant School for Girls, 200 Madison-ave., 4th floor. Girls, French, Drawing and Painting, Higher English, Latin and French, Methodist; French and German; Mathematics and Military Drill for schools; French and English Classics; Mathematics and French and English. Separate and limited class for little boys.

MRS. SALISBURY, 29 EAST 74th-st. (corner Madison-ave.) SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.

For Both Sexes—City.

A.—CIRCULARS OF BEST SCHOOLS. Free to parents. Please give particulars. E. MIRIAM COVINGTON & CO., 31 East 17th-st., Union Square.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY.

EXAMINATIONS FOR ADMISSION.

Will be held in New-York, lecture room of the Young Men's Christian Association, at 4th cor. of 41st-st., THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 28, and 29, beginning at 8 o'clock a. m., June 26.

MISS J. F. WREAK'S Boarding and Day School for School girls and children, 95 Madison-ave., will open September 27.

MISS ANNETTE SCHENCK's Boarding and School, for Young Ladies and Children, 4 East Fifty-ninth-st., New-York (Facing Central Park). Kindergarten Primary and Secondary Department. Boarding and Board-and-Supper Stevens of Pennsylvania; Hon. William M. Evarts, New-York; Hon. Edmund Pierrepont, Hon. John Jay Gould, President of the New-York Stock Exchange; Hon. George W. McCrary, Hon. George W. C. Schenck, Washington, D. C.

Instruction

For Both Sexes—City.

A.—PARENTS will find (free) best schools, A. city, country and Europe, as solid tuition, board and discipline at LEGENDRE'S American-European Teachers' Home.

The Harpers have just brought out a library edition of the collection of short tales and anecdotes which Charles Webb wrote under the title of "Good Stories."

Musurus Pacha, the Turkish Ambassador in London, has translated Dante's "Purgatorio" into modern Greek.

The Rev. William Gaskell, the husband of the author of "Mary Barton," lately died in Manchester. He was a Unitarian clergyman.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through an instalment of a tale for the 'copy' of which the printer's boy has been clamoring in the passage, forgotten the very names of the characters whom I had introduced in the preceding portion."

The Hon. Edward McPherson's "Hand-book of Politics" is always valuable, and more valuable than ever in campaign year. The edition for 1884 will be published about August 10. It will contain the record of every vote and of the entire action upon the enactment of the tariff of 1883, and of the subsequent attempts to modify and repeal; also the actions of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, and letters of acceptance of the candidates.

Major Harland's little volume "Cookery for Beginners" (D. Lothrop & Co.) is admirable in every way. Its directions are so simple, so complete and so exact, that no person of ordinary intelligence can fail to cook successfully by means of its rules.

Mr. Sals has been making some frank statement in regard to what he calls his "four bad novels." They, "perhaps, show more," he says, "than do any other of the things which I have written the marks of sloveness and baseness; for when I am England I work at drama as a journalist; many hours every day except Saturday; and the few romances which the proprietors of periodicals have induced me to write have been flung off in the brief intervals between the daily spells of grinding newspaper toll; flung off so rapidly that I have often, while rushing through